International PhD Program in Taiwan and Transcultural Studies

Curriculum 2022/03/30

Type	Course Name	Credits	Course description
	Taiwan Humanities Studies in the International Context 國際脈絡下的台灣人文研究	3	This course introduces students to selected key international research fields in which Taiwan is or can be one of the foci. The aim is to equip students with adequate knowledge and research methodology to participate in the exchange with scholars from these international academic communities.
Required Courses	Introduction to Transcultural Studies 跨文化研究理論	3	The goal of this course is to introduce students to the concept of transculturality as a method of scholarly inquiry which critiques and overturns traditional approaches in the humanities which are focused on particular national traditions. The course will survey the most influential theorizations of national identity and its relationship to the modern state, problematize the concept of "culture," and outline how the theory of transculturality builds on these ideas while also offering alternatives to them. In addition, we will also explore the ways in which the case of Taiwan illuminates or contradicts the assumptions of transcultural theory.
	Multidisciplinary Approaches to Taiwan and Transcultural Studies 台灣與跨文化的多學科研究方法	2	The goal of this course is to introduce students to the concept of transculturality as a method of scholarly inquiry which critiques and overturns traditional approaches in the humanities which are focused on particular national traditions. The course will survey the most influential theorizations of national identity and its relationship to the modern state, problematize the concept of "culture," and outline how the theory of transculturality builds on these ideas while also offering alternatives to them. In addition, we will also explore the ways in which the case of Taiwan illuminates or contradicts the

	Curriculum	2022/03/30
	assumptions of transcultural theory.
	In this course, the students will learn how to develop goodenic argume	nta conducti

			assumptions of transcultural theory.
	Academic Writing 研究論文寫作	2	In this course, the students will learn how to develop academic arguments, conducting textual or cultural analysis to support these arguments, and develop a clear and elegant writing style. The students are expected to improve their writing skills through interactive activities such as class discussions and peer review.
	Cultural Institution and Internationalization (practical training) 文化機構與國際化(實習)	1	This course is a practical training course in which the students will have practical training or work as a volunteer in the cultural institutions they are interested in. The students are expected to put the cultural knowledge and theories they acquired in class to practical use, and to re-examine the theories by doing so. Each student will be assigned a supervisor, and will have to finish the following works under his/her instruction. First, to conduct researches on the institution and make preliminaries for the practical training. Second, to have practical training or work as a volunteer in a cultural institution for at least 18 hours. Third, to submit a final report to the supervisor.
	Dissertation 博士論文	12	Dissertation
Senior Seminar 專題討論		1	In this course, students will work with their instructors on primary sources and methodology for their research topics, in preparation for writing their dissertation proposals.
Type	Course Name	Credits	Course description
Elective	ective Contemporary Culture and		This course explores the culture of Taiwan in the historical and socio-political context Courses	es Globalization 3		of globalization. Students will examine the impact of globalization on cultural

國立中興大學台灣與跨文化研究國際博士學位學程 International PhD Program in Taiwan and Transcultural Studies

Curriculum	2022/03/30	١
Curriculum	2022/03/30	,

	當代文化中的全球化議題		formations in Taiwan from Japanese colonial period to present, and reflect on how Taiwan may participate in global society through knowledge and cultural productions.
			Through interdisciplinary discussions across critical theories, history, sociology, literary and film studies, this course invites students to explore the tasks and directions of humanities research in the era of globalization.
	Cincular Literary Ctr. lies in		本課程將以「東亞」為思考場域,從「漢字文化圈」概念出發,討論「世界華文
	Sinophone Literary Studies in		文學」、「華語語系文學」等相關概念的衍生與發展脈絡,並以臺灣為樞紐,探討
	the East Asian Context	3	戰後華文文學在東亞的發展與傳播,以及與其相關的華語語系論述、文化翻譯、
	東亞與華文文學研究		殖民現代性等議題,尤其將特別針對新興的大眾文學創作形式進行探究,並思考
	(中文授課, In Chinese)		將為華文文學帶來怎樣新的發展契機與挑戰。
	Seminar on Taiwan Cinema 台灣電影專題	3	The purpose of this course is two-fold. First, it aims to provide a broad overview of Taiwan cinema from the early "taiyu pian" to the contemporary cinematic production after Cape No. 7 (2008). Second, since cinema, like literature, is intertwined with the social, cultural, historical conditions from which it emerges, it has also become indispensable for a cultural study on Taiwan at different stages from 1950s to the 口污电别寻戏		present. The course will shuttle between the examining of general cultural, social, historical factors and the close reading of a specific cinematic work. Through the course, we hope that students will be able to know culture via cinema and cinema via culture.
	Ecocritical Perspectives on		This course aims to familiarize students with current ecocriticial theories and to enable Literature	3	them to employ these theories in original readings of literature and film in general as 文學與生態批評		well as from Taiwan. It is divided into two sections: The first half of the semester will provide an introduction to current ecocritical theory, contextualizing ecocriticism within the larger field of critiques of modernity and payir special attention to linkages between ecocriticism and postcolonial theory. In the secon r - · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · contextualizing ecocriticism within the larger field of critiques of modernity and paying special attention to linkages between ecocriticism and postcolonial theory. In the second half of the semester, these theoretical perspectives will be brought to bear on a selection of texts and films in general as well as from Taiwan.

Curriculum 2022/03/30

		As Sheldon H. Lu defines it, "Eco-cinema is cinema with an ecological consciousness.
	3	It articulates the relationship of human begins to the physical environment, earth, nature,
Seminar on Eco-cinema		and animals from a biocentire, non-anthropocentric point of view." Taking this definition 生態環境電影專題		as the starting point, this course examines selected films from Taiwan and China that thematize environmental or ecological Issues. Students will also learn how a keen eco-consciousness impact on our interpretive strategy and understanding of films.
Cultural Heritage and Digital	3	The class addresses the issues, standards and practices involved in digitizing cultural Archiving		heritage worldwide and in preserving digital materials. Through theoretical, practical
文化遺產與數位典藏		and hands-on approaches, students will gain experience in digital archive production 义化退度兴致位兴趣		and gain an understanding of the administrative and legal issues.
Social Memory and Digital	3	The class addresses the issues, standards and practices involved in digitizing cultural Humanities		heritage worldwide and in preserving digital materials. Through theoretical, practical 社會記憶與數位人文研究		and hands-on approaches, students will gain experience in digital archive production, 在自己思兴数位八文州九		and gain an understanding of the administrative and legal issues.
Introduction to STS and	3	This seminar course is intended as an interdisciplinary introduction to two new Cultural Studies	3	developed fields in humanities: studies of the body in STS, and Cultural Studies. In the

		Curriculum	2022/03/30
身體、科技與文化研究		first part, we will study writings that deal with the body in anthropology and STS, as well as in the scientific and medical know part will introduce some important elements for our understanding and, by doing so, invites students to review the formation of the experience in Taiwan. The second part deals with various topics of Critical theory, such as representation, identification, historiograph come to terms with concepts of cultural materialism, modernity performativity, etc.	wledge. Besides, this ag of modern bodies very unique bodily Cultural Studies and hy, etc. We will also
Independent Study 專題研究	1	This course is a practical training course, in which the students training or work as a volunteer in the cultural institutions they are students are expected to put the cultural knowledge and theories the to practical use, and to re-examine the theories by doing so. Exassigned a supervisor, and will have to finish the following with instruction. First, to conduct researches on the institution and make practical training. Second, to have practical training or work as a volunteer in the cultural institution and make practical training. Third, to submit a final report to the	re interested in. The ney acquired in class ach student will be works under his/her preliminaries for the olunteer in a cultural Seminar on Sinophone Cinema 華語電影專題	3	Cinema has become a major genre of contemporary cultural procession displays a special mode of humanity thinking, and its cultural significance. Using Sinophone cinema as its subject, this examine the forms of expression and the substance of contemporary cultural procession and the substance of contemporary cultural procession and its cultural significance. Using Sinophone cinema as its subject, this examine the forms of expression and the substance of contemporary cultural procession.	content also conveys s course attempts to Biopolitics for Literary and	3	Biopolitics and biotech researches are two important topics these d	ays. This course will

		Curriculum	2022/03/30
Cultural Studies		be divided in three parts: I. Thomas Lemke's Biopolitics:An Adav	anced Introduction. II.
文學與文化研究的生命政治		Critical Essays and texts that shape current conceptualisation in	Biopolitical theories.
		Among all, Agamben's Homo Sacer \Hannah Arendt's The Humai	n Condition \Esposito's Immunitas, Hardt Negri's Empir, Nicholas Rose/Paul Rabinow v	works. This course will conclude by extending mostly Agamben and Arendt's philosop	phical arguments onto cinematic as well as textual readings, such as Kim Stanley Robins	so's 2312 and selective texts that explore the subject matter of Biopolitics.
		The seminar aims to systematically contextualize world	literature within our contemporary literary debates. In current debates on "world li	terature," economicist models have so far held sway (Damrosch, Moretti, and	Casanova). Based on understandings of time and geographical space derived from V	Wallerstein's theory of "world-system", these models view time and history as singular a	and linear, as in classic 3	theories of modernity, and space as divided between metr	ropolitan centers and World Literature and Theories		peripheries, and use vocabularies of import and export, exchange	and accumulation. As of the World		a result, literatures in Asian and African languages are deemed	"local", "peripheral", 世界文學與理論		"poor" or "underdeveloped" (SOAS, U of London). Literatures t	hat "have not made it" onto the world stage or are on the way of becoming part of the w	orld literature requires further discussions over issues such as the distance from the "worl	d reader," the worlding methodologies related to the sturdy of non-European traditions as	nd textual translations.
		For contemporary Taiwanese readers, the way we view world lit	terature has a lot to do with the way we view the world. By examining "world" literature	from non-Eurocentric views of the world and to put forward Taiwanese and/or non-wo	estern views of world-

國立中興大學台灣與跨文化研究國際博士學位學程 International PhD Program in Taiwan and Transcultural Studies

2022/03/30

ing literature, the seminar will look at the multiple layers and networks of production and circulation of the literary worlds. Among the existent critical methodologies related to the study of non-European traditions, this seminar also emphasizes the transitional feasibility of providing new comparative interpretations of the World, the underpinning critical and theoretical assumptions, relevant issues upon interdisciplinary and the ultimate need for textual analytic modalities that would complement and enrich methods commonly borrowed from the social sciences, art history, and philosophy.

The first part of the course examines various ideas of the world and its link to literature and culture in Goethe, Hegel, Marx and Arendt. In the second part of the course, we will turn to consider novels from and about postcolonial (transnational) space that attempt to transform the world created by Northern political and economic hegemony. We will study novels from Africa, Asia and the Caribbean that explore the consequences of commercial and financial flows such as international tourism, humanitarian aid, foreign investment etc. for humane social development. Issues to be discussed include: the autonomy of transnational-literariness and trans-cultural flows in relation to economic flows; the normative status and transformative power of world literature in the wake of Marxist critique; non-Eurocentric accounts of world literature; the connections between the formal features of committed literature and its thematic concerns in the crafting of new figurations and stories of belonging of postcolonial (transnational) peoples and migrants; transnational (cosmopolitan) narrative experimentation; the revival of the story form and the use of 'magic' and its relation to realism; the political use of the Bildungsroman. The final part of the course will touch slightly upon the development of sinophone literature in the world. Readings will also include th	neoretical work and criticism by David Harvey, Salman Rushdie, Walter Benjamin,	Benedict Anderson, David Damrosch, Pascale Casanova, Franco Moretti, and Giovan	nni Arrighi, Martha

		Curriculum	2022/03/30
		Nussbaum, Shu-Mei Shih, Rey Chow, Amanda Anderson, Ella Sho	ohat, Suman Gupta, Pheng Cheah, Bruce Robbins, Vinay Dharwadker, Timothy Brennar	n.
		This course will focus on "Travel" as a theme and how travel writ	tings in the selected journals, travelogues, films, and fictions explicitly define the norm	m of individual and 3	collective identities. Analyzing the transitional meanings of the tra-	vel themes (journey for pleasure, exile, flâneur, escape, expatriation.) embedded in these	works, we will look Travel Writings and Travel		at the functions of travel and how the writers artistically formula	ate identity in their Literature		transnational or local experiences. We will explore how several 19	9 th and 20 th Century 旅行書寫與旅行文學		travel writers who portray characters and illustrates with landsc	ape details in their journeys and how travel across borders incubates and intensifie	es the awareness of national differences or the absence it, which weakens or reint	forces the constant reiteration of western modernity, thereby approaching alternative	questions of critical methods towards an understanding of Self and Other that read	ches beyond Euro-Anglocentrism.
		Since its inception in the early 1990s, ecocriticism has emerged as	one of the principal Lutus dustion to Forguitisism		new fields of research in Anglophone literary and cultural studies	s. With roots in the Introduction to Ecocriticism	3	Romantic criticism of modernity, scientific biology, and the emand	cipatory movements 生態文學批評導論		of the 1960s, it is a field fraught with internal tensions that re	volve around basic questions: What contribution can the humanities make to our struggle	e with the ecological

		Curriculum	2022/03/30
		crisis? How should our growing understanding of society's depend	ence on its natural environment inform the way in which we read (and produce) cultu	ıral artifacts? How should we conceive of the relationship between scientific and huma	anistic knowledge?
		In this course, we will survey the different ways in which ecocritic	eism and its critics have answered these questions – and we will read a variety of cultur	al artifacts to see how these answers hold up when applied to concrete cases.
	2	This course is intended as a survey of postmodernist literature with a	focus primarily on American fiction (and cinema). Although the course does incorpo	orate the theory of postmodernism, the chief aim is to acquaint students with the writers a	and cultural context of postmodernism in the 20 th and 21 st centuries. Students will be	exposed to literary Postmodern Fiction		theorists such as Fredric Jameson, Linda Hutcheon, Jean Baudrillard,	, and Jean-François 後現代小說	3	Lyotard, but this exposure will come in small doses and only with	thin discussions of specific literary/cinematic texts. The writers we will be reading	g include Thomas Pynchon, Don DeLillo, Donald Barthelme, Robert Coover, and	other "first wave" postmodernists, but we will also tackle "post-postmodernist" (ar	nd New Sincerity) writers like David Foster Wallace, Michael Chabon, Jennifer Egan, a	and Dave Eggers.